Dear Dr. Henney:

Having led a very healthy life style and nevertheless developed a serious cancer, I am deeply concerned about the use of antibiotics and hormones in the food chain. As you well know, western countries have banned their use as well as the use of disease resistance seeds in numerous situations. Why are we lagging behind in the face of all the evidence available and the objections of respected organizations such as the CDC.

As I listened to Bill Moyers program on Public Television about the outright purchasing of influence by special interest groups/large corporations, I am wondering if the agribusiness is doing just that regarding the use of antibiotics and hormones when raising animals for harvest.
